Saccaro joins GE HealthCare from Baxter International, a global medtech leader, where he has been serving as its executive vice president and CFO since 2015. Saccaro received a bachelor's degree in economics and master's degree in engineering-economic systems from Stanford University.

"I am excited that Jay has agreed to serve as our CFO, as our company executes on our strategic growth plan and achieves our purpose to create a world where healthcare has no limits and continues to deliver on our promises to customers and shareholders. Jay is a world-class CFO bringing deep knowledge of the medtech and bioscience industries to GE HealthCare, coupled with excellent strategic and operational skills and extensive experience in leading large global organizations," said GE HealthCare President and CEO Peter Arduini. "I want to thank Helmut for his leadership during the leadup and spin-off from GE and for creating tremendous momentum that we will continue to build on under Jay."

"I am thrilled to join GE HealthCare and be part of the exciting innovation the company is driving within the precision care space," said Saccaro.
